Project Data Sheet- Tunnel Inspections & Condition Surveys

The Alan Auld Group has carried out a number of specialist inspection and condition surveys of tunnels and other structures. This type of work is usually commissioned directly by asset owners who take a long-term view of the structures.

These assets usually have a long history and often plans and construction details have been lost or misplaced. Sometimes alterations and repairs have been made over many years and the owner does not have the specialist knowledge needed to make objective decisions on repair and maintenance. The Alan Auld Group can assist in this process by carrying out an inspection, and or survey, of the asset identifying areas of concern.

This work can be combined with desk studies of historical records, and a plan of action agreed with the client. This will prioritise any urgent remedial works which may have an effect on the safety of the infrastructure, and identify other maintenance or replacement works necessary.
